CODE REVIEW

Code	Title
STPUPA	Update Authority	Passed/Low Risk
STPTFA	Transfer Fee Configuration Authority	Passed
STPMTA	Mint Authority	Passed
STPFRA	Freeze Authority	Passed

VULNERABILITY ANALYSIS

ERRORS FOUND

STPUPA: Update Authority

Description: The update authority controls changes to the token's metadata, such as URI or royalty settings.

Current Configuration: The update authority is set to 75Fz2AzDnk3vJr27MBLh6aKbyLgDxwpViEpX8iSuLsKH. This means the token's metadata (e.g., name, symbol, URI) can still be modified by the holder of this authority.

 Passed/Low Risk

Analysis: If the update authority is compromised or misused, the metadata of the token could be altered maliciously. While the creator address is verified, external risks like key leakage should be mitigated.

- Recommendation:
 - Ensure that the private key for the update authority is securely stored and consider transferring authority to a multisig wallet for added security.

VULNERABILITY ANALYSIS

ERRORS FOUND

STPTFA: Transfer Fee Configuration Authority

Description: The transfer fee configuration authority governs the ability to impose fees during token transfers.

Current Configuration: No transfer fee authority or fee configuration was detected in the metadata.

 Passed

Analysis: The absence of transfer fees minimizes the complexity and user friction during token transactions, but care must still be taken to prevent future modifications.

- Recommendation:
 - Maintain this configuration to enhance user experience unless transfer fees are critical to the project's model.

VULNERABILITY ANALYSIS

ERRORS FOUND

STPMTA: Mint Authority

Description: The mint authority can create (mint) new tokens, significantly impacting the tokenomics and trust in the system.

Current Configuration: The Mint Authority is disabled (N/A), meaning no new tokens can be created. This ensures a fixed supply, preventing inflation and securing tokenholder trust.

 Passed

Analysis: Since the mint authority has been revoked, the risk of additional token minting is eliminated. This prevents token inflation and maintains investor confidence in the fixed supply.

- Recommendation:
 - No further action is needed as the mint authority is already revoked.

VULNERABILITY ANALYSIS

ERRORS FOUND

STPFRA: Freeze Authority

Description: The freeze authority allows the token owner to freeze accounts, potentially preventing token transfers.

Current Configuration: Freeze Authority is set to 75Fz2AzDnk3vJr27MBLh6aKbyLgDxwpViEpX8iSuLsKH.

 Passed

Analysis: The presence of a freeze authority means that the owner has the ability to freeze or unfreeze accounts. While this can be useful for security purposes, it introduces a centralization risk if misused or if the authority is compromised.

- Recommendation:
 - Consider revoking the freeze authority if full decentralization is desired.
